ARMED ROBBERY SEQUEL.

Allegations Against Police.

A RAIN OF BLOWS?

The case was resumed at the Assizes this morning, in which two Chinese are charged in connection with an armed robbery which occurred at 6 and 7, Kak Hang Village, Kowloon City, on the evening of October 16.

Kwok Chun, a male inmate of the house, who had identified the first accused and brought about his arrest in Shamshuipo, was recalled for cross-examination by Mr. Hin-shing Lo, counsel for the defence.

Witness said that neither Chinese Constable C203 nor C217 at any time told him where the first accused lived. He also denied that any European or Chinese Police officer, or any outsider had at any time told him where No. 1 lived.

A General Search.
On October 18, two days after the robbery, witness went out with Constables C203 and C217 to look for robbers generally and not for any particular man.

They left the Kowloon City Police Station by bus at 10 a.m. and went to Mongkok. Then, up to 2 p.m., they spent their time walking about between Mongkok and Shamshuipo. Witness saw the first accused in Shamshuipo at 2 p.m. and pointed him out to the two constables.

At the same time the first accused also saw the witness, and, noticing his motion to the constables, the accused ran. The constables gave chase and accused was arrested in a back lane. Then the accused was handcuffed and they all boarded a bus and went to the Yau-mati Police Station.

He Did Not See.
Replying to further questions by Mr. Lo, witness said that he did not see C217, immediately after the first accused's arrest, twist his right arm behind him and strike him on the back. He admitted that C203 went to C217's assistance and helped him to hold the accused. Witness did not see C203 twist the first accused's left arm behind him and also strike him on the back.

Mr. Lo: I put it to you that both constables rained a number of blows on the first prisoner?—I did not see that. I only saw him handcuffed shortly after his arrest.

Is it right to say that you never saw his arrest, and that when you saw him it was near the bus stopping station and he was already handcuffed?—That is not correct. I saw his arrest.

Woman Tied Up.
A woman inmate of the house was the next witness called by Mr. Somerset Fitzroy, Assistant Attorney-General. She said that the robbers, numbering five, came at about 6.45 p.m. on October 16. She noticed only one armed man, and he carried a short firearm. She recognised first accused as the man who tied her up.

The case proceeded in the afternoon.

UNLIKELY STORY.

"First time I have heard that," remarked Mr. Schofield in the Central Court this morning, when a Chinese, charged with possession of a quantity of illicit opium, pleaded guilty, and stated that a man had forced him to carry the opium, threatening to assault him if he refused.

The Magistrate—You did not think you could get even with him by handing the opium straight over to the Revenue Department?

Accused—He would also assault me in that case. (Laughter.)

In imposing a fine of $800 or five months' hard labour, His Worship stated to accused:—"I think you brought up that story in the cells."

DIPHTHERIA SPREADING.

WATCH FOOD!

INOCULATION NOT ADVISABLE.

Interviewed by a China Mail reporter this morning, with regard to the diphtheria scare, Dr. G. Pope, Medical Health Officer, admitted that the number of cases reported to date is definitely abnormal, but there is really nothing to create a panic about. The principal thing that Health Officers are concentrated upon is, of course, the tracing of the source of the disease. He anticipates that that will be accomplished soon, and then he does not think that much difficulty will be encountered in checking the trouble.

Asked if he would like to suggest the cause of the epidemic, Dr. Pope said that he had certain ideas on his mind but he would not like to express his opinion at present, preferring to have time to investigate his theory and make a statement when he was sure of it.

Power of Resistance.

Asked as to the advisability of compulsory inoculation, Dr. Pope said that he would not advise it during an epidemic as in some cases that would have the effect of lowering the power of resistance. In fact, he would not like to advise one way or the other; it should be left to the better judgment of the public. He would not like to know that someone suffered from inoculation against their better judgment.

As to preventive measures, Dr. Pope said that the public should be very careful to see that their foodstuff does not become dust contaminated, and all food, particularly vegetables, should not be eaten when not properly cooked. In no circumstances should vegetables be eaten uncooked. Another important point is to keep away from from crowds.

Mainly in Hong Kong.

Most of the cases reported, Dr. Pope said, have occurred in Hong Kong as distinct from Kowloon, but the disease is very widely distributed, and cases have been reported from everywhere, even isolated places, the Peak being as bad as any other locality. The only section of the population which has so far escaped is the Royal Navy, not a single case having occurred to date. Cases have occurred in the Army.

When told that there was a rumour that as many as six cases have occurred at the Y.M.C.A. Dr. Pope said that he was not aware of that, and on reference to his register, stated that there was only one case recorded from the "Y."

All Non-Chinese.

Since Christmas Eve, 28 cases have been reported. Whereas in the last few days the nationalities of patients have been wholly non-Chinese, Chinese cases have predominated in the earlier part of this month.

Replying to a suggestion that there is an insufficiency of anti-toxin in the Colony to cope with the present epidemic, Dr. Pope said that he could not deny, or confirm that rumour, but he would certainly think that there should be no shortage as this is the normal time of the year for diphtheria to occur and one would think that suppliers of anti-toxin would anticipate the

PAPAL MASS IN ST. PETER'S.

Attended by Nineteen Cardinals.

CHEERS FOR THE POPE.

Vatican City, Yesterday. Nineteen Cardinals, including Monsignor Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, attended the Papal Mass in St. Peter's this morning. The appearance of the Pontiff, who was carried in a sedia gestatoria on the shoulders of six crimson-clad attendants, was the signal for prolonged cheers. The procession up the aisle was headed by an attendant carrying a tall golden cross. —Reuter's Special Service.

CHEAP TEAS

AN ANOMALY AT HOME.

PRESS PLEA

WARNING AGAINST RUIN.

London, To-day.

If the wholesale importation of cheap tea is allowed to continue many Empire Tea Companies will be ruined is emphasised by Thornley and Company, Mincing Lane rubber and tea share brokers in a letter to the Financial Times deploring that action has so far been taken by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to reimpose a duty on foreign teas.

In a leader on the subject the Financial Times recognises the anomaly of admitting Dutch East Indies produce to Britain duty free when it is largely responsible for the present crisis, but points out that a considerable proportion of British-owned Companies operate in the Dutch East Indies. Furthermore, the expense of tax collection and the possible diversion of Dutch competition to other markets are other factors to be considered. Nevertheless the machinery of the tax collection still exists and can be set in motion with the minimum of disturbance.—Reuter.

London's Most Beloved Statue.

IN OLD POSITION.

London, To-day.

A few minutes before midnight the little god, Eros, London's most beloved statue (which was removed in 1925, owing to alterations in Piccadilly Circus), was unveiled in its old position to the cheers of thousands of theatre-goers, and others.—Reuter.

MR. CHU CHAO-HSIN

May Be Appointed As Foreign Minister.

Nanking, Yesterday.

There is now a third candidate for the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, namely, Mr. Chu Chao-hsin, the others being Messrs. C. C. Wu and Eugene Chen. It is believed that if Mr. C. C. Wu insists upon assuming the Chairmanship of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, Mr. Chu Chao-hsin stands a good chance of receiving the appointment, as he is acceptable to both the Nanking and Canton groups of the present Plenary Session.

As it has been ordered that in view of the national crisis there will be no New Year holidays all Government officials will be working as usual.

Mr. Wang Chung-hui has telegraphed from The Hague resigning from the presidency of the Judicial Yuan, but both the Canton and Nanking groups, it is understood, have replied urging him to continue his work and return to China at the earliest opportunity.—Reuter.

IS IT YOURS?

The Police authorities are seeking the owner of a camera, valued at about $30, which was apparently left by a customer in the B.B.C. Curio Shop, Ice House Street, about ten days ago. A fold of the shop was charged before Mr. Schofield with larceny of the camera by finding. He was remanded for a week in order that the owner might be traced.

JAPAN'S CANDOUR

CONQUEST OF MANCHURIA.

U.S. OPINION

GOVERNMENT'S SILENCE.

Washington, Yesterday.

Japan's notification that she will continue operations against Chinchow has been received by marked Government silence, but is interpreted in diplomatic circles as a frank confirmation that Japan fully intends completing the "conquest" of Manchuria.—Reuter's American Service.

Earlier News.

Tokyo, Yesterday.

"So long as the Chinchow military authorities, while simulating an unaggressive attitude, continue to instigate and manipulate the movements of bandit organisations against the Japanese army as well as Japanese and other peaceful inhabitants, and so long as officers and men in Chinchow army continue to mingle in large numbers with these bandit groups, thereby rendering impossible to distinguish the latter from the regular troops, so long must the responsibility for the consequences of any action which may be entailed upon the Japanese army in self-defence rest entirely with the Chinese."

This quotation roughly sums up Japan's stand as expanded in a lengthy statement issued after the presentation of Japan's replies to Britain, America and France. It asserts that Japan has obtained irrefutable evidence that the Chinchow military authorities are carrying out systematic intrigues with bandits and enumerates various details showing how both Chinese troops and bandits are increasing in number and activity during the past few weeks.

The statement further describes the earnest attempts made to persuade Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang to withdraw for the purpose of avoiding a clash.

More Japanese Troops.
The Cabinet has sanctioned the despatch of an additional mixed brigade of troops from Korea as reinforcements for Manchuria.—Reuter.

RUN ON MOTOR PUMPS.

Thefts at Reclamation at Wanchai.

TWO ARRESTS MADE.

The prevalence of thefts of Duro motor pumps, used in connection with flushing systems on the reclamation in Wanchai, was remarked upon by Detective-Sub-Inspector Rozesky in the Central Police Court this morning, when two youths, Li Fan and Yuen Hong, were charged before Mr. Schofield with the theft of a Duro motor from 355 Lockhart Road. Li pleaded guilty to the charge. Yuen, stated that, although he went to steal, he did not actually take anything. Li stood on his shoulders to gain entry to the house. There was another youth with them, but he was not caught.

The prosecuting officer said that on Saturday morning, first accused was arrested by a Chinese constable on duty in Tonocchy Road, carrying a sack under his arm. The sack contained a Duro motor, also a pair of pliers and a spanner. Accused took a detective out and eventually the second man was arrested. The motor had been stolen from a pump house, on the roof of which were found other spanners. The lock of the door had been wrenched off.

He added that the pump was valued in all at about $270. It was used for the flush system. There were about 4,000 of these pumps in the reclamation, and the stealing of them was becoming an epidemic. He had himself warned the landlords to put grilles on the pump-houses, instead of having fire doors and this locks. The Police were endeavouring to find the buyers or receivers of the pumps, but so far they were unsuccessful.

His Worship—Are they exported? Sub-Inspector Rozesky replied that he did not know; they might even be sold to building contractors.

The youths were remanded for 48 hours in Police custody.

FALSE PASSPORTS.

Two Chinese, on charges of using false passports, pending banishment from this Colony, failed to appear before Mr. W. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning. They had their bail of $1,500 each forfeited, on the application of Chief Detective-Inspector Reynolds.

Det. Sergeant MacDonald gave evidence of having served two orders at 12, Kwong Yuen Street East on December 23.

"THE DAWN PATROL."

Richard Barthelmess, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Neil Hamilton share honours in this picture, which started its run at the Queen's Theatre yesterday. The cast is entirely male and there is in support of the leaders a fine combination of bright faces, keen youths.

The story is an episode of the glorious doings of the Royal Flying Corps during the War in 1915. Most of our planes were manned by youngsters just out of school and with only a few hours' flying experience to their credit. At the time of their being drafted "out there" to do or die. In spite of their inexperience they are brave lads who face death unflinchingly and become veterans over night, fighting an uneven fight against big odds and men who are past masters in the air combat. Von Richter is the German ace in this picture. He accounts for many British planes, but finally meets his doom.

For thrills this picture is second to none. Nothing is over-done, and the whole makes an historical record.

From Official Sources.

"GRUMPY."

Fun and thrills for young and old alike are furnished by the delectable doings of Cyril Maude in "Grumpy," the talking film veteran of the famous old stage play at the King's Theatre.

At the opening yesterday the audiences at the King's Theatre went for "Grumpy" in a great big way—and if their response is a criterion of the rest of the film-loving world, it would seem that Maude is to become one of the names to be conjured with in Hollywood.

"Grumpy" is a play built around a character. As that character, Cyril Maude carries with him the full burden of the show-furnishing comedy, thrills, delicious bits of amusing subtlety and withal a grand exhibition of real character-acting. For as so many others have said with full truthfulness—"Grumpy" the play, is Cyril Maude, the actor.

It is a splendid talkie. Don't miss it.

"QUEEN HIGH."

If you gave a high point such as the top of a building available for your use for a couple of days, you can devise a stunt that will get attention.

Have your carpenter and artist construct a sign-device in the form of a box-kite. The large lower surface of the "kite" on a wire which is of dull colour so as to be invisible from the street. A heavy white string runs from the lower front of the "kite" to a building across the street or to some hidden roof spot below the "kite." The idea is to create the illusion of a flying kite.

The lettering must be plain enough to be seen from the street. Another way to make use of a high spot is to have a "screen" constructed of panels which resemble playing-cards. Two or three panels will be enough, depending upon the points of vantage from which the "screen" will be seen. Each panel bears the same copy—"You haven't seen anything until you've seen "Queen High," the fresh funny farce at the Central Theatre, for its final showings to-day.

"MONKEY BUSINESS."

The Four Marx Brothers do not miss a trick when it comes to providing comedy. Norma McLeod, who bossed their most recent and most frolicsome opus, "Monkey Business" (coming to the King's Theatre on Wednesday next) sees in their efforts on the screen every known comedy method, ranging from slapstick to subtle satire. McLeod can be called the perfect analyst of comedy methods. He began by drawing the comical line cartoons for Charlie comedies several years ago. Then he became a title writer and subsequently a gag man, scenarist, and director.

"Through a careful choice of characterisation for themselves, the Marx Brothers have combined all modes of comedy within their own entertainment," says McLeod.

"THE MAN IN POSSESSION."

Sam Wood, who launched Robert Montgomery's film career when he directed "So This is College," had the distinction of directing his new starring vehicle, "The Man in Possession" which will open on Friday at the Queen's Theatre.

Charlotte Greenwood heads the supporting cast in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. Other featured are Irene Purcell, C. Aubrey Smith, Beryl Mercer, Reginald Owen, and Alan Mowbray.

ST. JOHN'S DAY.

Patronal Festival Held in Cathedral.

Yesterday was the Patronal Festival of St. John's Cathedral—St. John the Evangelist's Day. Both the morning and evening services were largely attended, there being special music.

Preaching at Matins, the Dean (Very Rev. A. Swann) remarked on the great responsibility on trying to direct the Church and its congregation in the right way. The clergy longed for their backing and their prayers.

The Cathedral spire rose above offices which fringed the harbour, and there it stood, pointing upward, daily pointing men's lives upwards. That was its purpose, and it was very well placed there, for hundreds passed by it daily though only a small portion of those made use of it. Nothing was less acceptable to God than empty worship, merely formal worship.

The Dean also emphasised that financial support was urgently needed for the development of the Church's work.

The preacher at Evensong was the Rev. H. V. Koop.

Should Women dread
the approach of a perfectly natural event?

NATURE never intended you to suffer unduly. Why is it then that so many thousands of women experience such pain and weakness?

Simply because the body lacks calcium.

That is the reply, supported by the best medical opinion. Calcium is the vital food of every body cell, and any shortage hinders the correct performance of all bodily functions, particularly those of women.

The use of KALZANA, the calcium-food, for a few weeks provides the whole system with all the calcium (lime) needed to establish that care-free, vigorous health that Nature intended you to enjoy.

But it must be Kalzana, as only in this scientific form (a combination of sodium-lactate and calcium-lactate) will the calcium be taken up and retained by your body.

Lose your dread—re-establish the functions on a normal basis by starting a course of Kalzana to-day.

Sold by all Chemists and Store

SKI CONTEST IN MONTREAL.

Oxford's Defeat by Cambridge.

FIRST RACE IN CANADA.

Montreal, Yesterday.
First blood in the eleventh ski contest between Oxford and Cambridge, which is being held here, was drawn by Cambridge who won the cross-country race held over eight miles of undulating country in the Laurentian Mountains.
The weather was excellent, the conditions being assisted by a fall of snow before the race.
This is the first occasion on which race is being held in Canada and is in conformity with the Empire Preference campaign, as the usual venue is St. Moritz—Reuter's Special Service.

BOY PRODIGIES OF FOOTBALL

Bastin and Others Who Have Become Famous in Their Teens.

Of the players of many games there are many who are good, but few who may be called great. They only are great who do greatly in the hour of severest trial. Hobbs and Macartney, Bradman and Sutcliffe, with all the varying conditions of cricket in Australia and England, are examples of men who rise above the ordinary level of high skill. The really great are rare (writes J. A. H. Cotton in the Evening Standard).

Let me illustrate this proposition by recalling Stephen Bloomer, England's inside-right at Association football for twelve years. He never played so well for his club, Derby County, as he did for England.

The renowned team builder, Mr. T. Watson, always said that Alec Raisbeck was never so wonderful as when he wore a Scottish jersey. For Liverpool he played well; for Scotland more than well. The heart and the will responded to the call, and the great player rose above his normal powers. This is the characteristic of greatness in games.

There is a footballer in London with this hall-mark. Clifford Sidney Bastin is answering the tests, and is clearly singled out for great distinction.

At Sixteen.

In April 1928 the boy Bastin, as an amateur of sixteen years, played for Exeter City. In October of the following year he appeared at inside-right for the Arsenal.

In the Spring of 1930 Bastin was the outside-left of the Arsenal in the final of the Association Cup, and did much towards victory. Who can ever forget his perfect pass that brought the first goal; the first blow, with all its proverbial weight?

The next Spring he was one of the League champions and the only member who played in every match of the long contest. A week ago Bastin was of the elect among thousands to represent the Football League. Even his reputation was so enhanced that next week he will, according to plan, take part in his first international match—for England against Wales.

Every honour of the game is his long before he has reached what law and convention call manhood. Truly a career without a parallel among latter-day players.

Past Prodigies.

It is not astonishing that people are asking if ever a younger footballer has been chosen for an international cap by the Football Association. He is 19 years and 7 months old. At this age how does he stand in relation to past prodigies? He cannot be the youngest international player for England. That title is held by Arthur Brown, a sturdy centre-forward, then of Sheffield United, but afterwards of Sunderland and Fulham, who played against Wales at Wrexham on February 29, 1904, when 18 years and 37 days old. His is the authenticated record for England.

Who is the youngest of all international footballers? This unique distinction belongs to Mr. W. K. Gibson, the lawyer of Belfast, who was both a forward and a back for Cliftonville, the mother club of Ireland. He played on the left wing for Ireland against Wales at Swansea in February, 1894, when he was 17 years and five months old.

A Welsh Record.

There is little doubt that the youngest player to be capped by Wales is Arthur Grenville Morris, now a citizen of Nottingham, who assisted Wales against Ireland on February 29, 1896, about six weeks before his nineteenth birthday. Shortly after, Mr. Morris had his first experience of England at Cardiff, and the visitors won by 9-1.

As G. B. Raikes, W. J. Oakley, A. G. Henfrey, G. O. Smith and R. R. Sandilands, were distinguished university and public school amateurs, and had with them Crabtree, Bassett, Bloomer and John Goodall, it is small wonder that Morris says that the match "made me rub my eyes."

To decide who was the youngest of all the famous Scottish international men is a task of some difficulty, because the universal provider of Scottish players in "the way back of beyond" was Queen's Park, the most admirable of all amateur clubs with a long history. But does any man think that the famous "Queens" were bothered about ages? They were content with ability. Moreover, it is only within the last forty years that "records" of any kind have been kept. All such minutiae are evidence of this modern phase of passion for the detail of big sport.

The Cleverest Forward. Still it is indisputable that James Blessington, the Celt now residing in Guernsey, and Robert Walker ("Bobby"), of the Heart of Midlothian, each played for Scotland against Ireland when 20 years old.

Walker is still revered as the cleverest forward who ever donned Scotland's colours. The man was once asked where he acquired his style. His reply was that he "never acquired it." He seemed to have a knack with his feet and practice did the rest.

In his second, that against England, at Glasgow in 1900, Walker was the inside-right in the cleverest vanguard Scotland ever had. He had been dubbed "the best player in Europe."

In those days, and before them, Association football had not the vogue that it has to-day. There were fewer players, but they were of a higher calibre, and wherever inquiry is possible the fact is revealed that most of the international men began this part of their career, as they should, when about twenty years of age.

William Meredith, who had the extraordinary experience of playing in these big matches of Wales during 25 years; Bloomer and Robert Crompton received their first honour at 21.

Before their day this seemed to be the average age.

Mr. E. C. Bambridge, now the honorary secretary of the Corinthians, was born on July 30, 1858, and was given his first cap for England vs. Scotland at the Oval on March 7, 1879.

The recorders of the period say that this was the best match "ever seen," and that Bambridge kicked two goals—"the first after a run over the whole length of the ground, the finest piece of dribbling, perhaps, ever seen."

He was not then more than 21.

Bastin has not the flying feet of Hulme, not the Indian jugglery of James, and not quite the thrust of Jack when he chooses; but Bastin does the right thing at the precise moment; and is a master of position play. This is the key to his success at such a tender age.

GRANDMA BACK TO SCHOOL AGAIN.

A grandmother is attending lectures at the University of Toronto, a leading centre for adult education. Mystery shrouds her name and the course she is studying. Eight married couples—two of whom have children attending the University—have also recently registered. One of the students is a prominent local business man who is bent on passing his fourth University year after an absence from school of 20 years.

KING EDWARD'S JOKE.

"I Would Make a Good Booking Clerk."

A STATION MASTER'S MEMORIES

King Edward's amusements when watching railway station crowds and listening to the extraordinary questions that are asked was recalled by Mr. Alfred C. Chalker, stationmaster at the Crystal Palace (Low Level) station, who has retired after 50 years' service.

Mr. Chalker, who was for many years stationmaster at Linkfield, Surrey, had several talks with King Edward when he was Prince of Wales.

"King Edward had an extraordinarily keen sense of humour, and whenever I met him he would chaff me about something," said Mr. Chalker. "Sometimes he would joke about the trains, and pretend to be astonished if they arrived punctually."

Seeing the Funny Side.

"He never failed to see the funny side of life, and at time he would stand in the booking-hall, unobserved by the general public, and simply rock with laughter at the often absurd questions people asked."

"The forlorn expressions on people's faces amused him when they came to the booking-office, and said despairingly, 'Please have I missed the last train home?' or, 'I've got two hours to wait—what shall I do?' or other such queries."

"After listening one day, King Edward turned to me and said, 'I should make a very good booking clerk, because I have watched you all working so often that I know how to answer all the funny questions you are asked.'"

"The King had a quick eye, too, for anything amusing or unusual in the dress or facial expression of fellow-passengers on the train, and on his journeys he would joke continually with the Duke of Richmond, the Duke of Norfolk, and others. I cannot imagine a jollier travelling companion than King Edward."

"Very often, too, he would travel by himself, for he was thoroughly democratic and free and easy."

H.M.S. Victory V.

"During the war the Crystal Palace was a naval training depot known as H.M.S. Victory V., and there were always about 14,000 men there. All through the war I was working 18 and 20 hours a day—and night—and it has been estimated that we dealt with 500,000 men in troop trains, and without a single mishap!"

"During air raids men from the Palace used to shelter in the railway tunnels but the Zeppelins and planes never wanted to bomb the Palace. Instead, they turned their searchlights on the glittering glass towers, knew then exactly where they were, and always used the Palace as a signpost. They could tell then the direction home."

"Once, in my young days, I insisted on a woman passenger paying threepence fare for air, enormous Persian cat she had with her. She was so furious at having to pay that, as the train moved out, she suddenly picked up the cat and flung it at me out of the window! She hoped it would scratch me, but it did not, and I took it home and kept it for years—a beautiful cat."

Met Racing People.

"I met all the prominent racing people, including Fred Archer, who always seemed to me rather big for a jockey. Then we had the horse boxes on the trains and one 'favourite' I remember tried to jump on the roof of the carriage, smashed the roof in, then kicked the back of the horse box out, and kept us all day trying to get him on the train. Eventually a goat was put in the train, and seeing it the fiery favourite followed as quietly as a lamb!"

"Fifty years ago long skirts and broad-brimmed hats made travelling for women very difficult, and I can say this in comparison with to-day—it is more difficult now to find a drunken man than it was to find a sober man when I started!"

"Visitors to Brighton from distant places like Sheffield, Manchester, Liverpool, or Burton, would often be so intoxicated after their day of merriment that they fell out of the trains at intermediate stations and had to be lifted back into their seats!"

Mr. Chalker received the M.B.E. for his war work at the Crystal Palace, and is well known at Brighton (where he was stationmaster at the Dyke Station). Chichester, Belmont and other places.

AIR MAILS.

New P.O. at London Airway Terminus.

FIVE HOURS TO PARIS.

London, Nov. 20.

It has now become possible so to expedite air-mail transport between London and Paris that from the time of posting in London, to the actual delivery in Paris, the total time occupied—including ground connections as well as the aerial journey from Croydon to Le Bourget—is only a little over five hours.

Three-quarters-of-an-hour are saved by the establishment, which has just been effected, of a new sub-Post Office in the Airway Terminus of Imperial Airways adjoining Victoria railway station, London, S.W.1.

Hitherto, late letters intended for the air-mail to Paris which leaves the London air-port at 12.30 p.m. daily have been accepted at the General Post office, E.C. up to 11 a.m., after which they have had to be placed in bags and sent to the Airway Terminus at Victoria to catch the passenger-car for the Croydon air-port which leaves at 11.45 a.m. But with the sub-Post Office now at the Airway Terminus it becomes possible to post a late letter at this new office up to within a minute of the departure of the car for Croydon.

Urgent Letters.

Those who thus save three-quarters-of-an-hour in the late posting of urgent letters also have the advantage that the air schedule between Croydon and Le Bourget has, so far as the new 4-engined airliners of Imperial Airways are concerned, been accelerated by 15 minutes, the time occupied in the 230-miles flight now being only 2 1/4 hours.

Thus, with the new postal facilities at Victoria, and with the faster air-liners, it means that a letter posted at the last available moment in London, and leaving by the 12.30 p.m. air-liner from Croydon, is delivered in Paris shortly after five o'clock that same afternoon, a total saving of approximately one hour as compared with previous schedules.

The cost of sending an ounce letter from London to Paris by air, including the air fee as well as the ordinary charges, is fourpence. Twelve years ago, when the Post Office entered into a contract for the carriage of mails on the London-Paris route, the fee was half-a-crown.

The advantage of having a Post Office at the Airway Terminus at Victoria applies also in the case of late letters for the Indian and African air mails. The air-liner with the African mail now leaves Croydon each Wednesday at 12.30 p.m., and it is possible to post late letters for this outgoing Empire

FATHER ATTACKS TEACHER.

Caned Child Cries "Kill Him, Dad."

REBELLIOUS PUPIL.

Frederick Taylor, of Clive Road, Romford, was fined £2 at Romford and ordered to pay 10s. towards a doctor's expenses, for assaulting Eric J. Hewlett, head master of Sallisbury Road School (Essex County Council), Romford.

Mr. S. J. Thorne, for the National Union of Teachers, said Mr. Hewlett had to correct Taylor's son for breach of discipline. Taylor called at the school and went to Mr. Hewlett's room, caught him by the throat, and struck him two blows over the left eye.

They grappled together and Mr. Hewlett had to call two assistants to help him. Taylor was overpowered and locked in the room, and the police sent for.

During the struggle Taylor's son, who was present, said "Kill him stone dead, Dad."

Mr. Hewlett denied that he punished the boy unnecessarily.

BANKER'S DEATH.

Scotsman's Career in America.

Evanston, Illinois, Yesterday. The death has occurred here of Dr. David Robertson Forgan, Vice-Chairman of the National Bank of the Republic—Reuter's American Service.

[Dr. Forgan's career reads like a page from fiction. Born in St. Andrew's in 1862, he started as a messenger in the Clydesdale Bank; emigrated to Halifax, Nova Scotia, where he held several bank appointments; went to America and rose to be President of the Union National Bank which was merged into the First National Bank of Chicago, of which his brother, Mr. James Berwick Forgan, is President.]

No Shoddy Stuff.

During the past few weeks overseas residents have heard a great deal of the "Buy British" campaign and of the phenomenal interest being taken in next year's British Industries Fair.

In a cosmopolitan Colony such as Hong Kong any amount of advocacy of "Buy British" is not likely to result in a hundred per cent. response. As the gateway to the furthest East competitors the world over send their wares here in full expectations of doing trade on their merits. There cannot be insularly as regards British-made goods. The Oriental, who forms the vast bulk of the potential customer, is not exactly noted for discernment and discrimination in favour of any one country at the expense of another. Like the British fair sex, even here and in Australia, he usually takes what is offered to him, heedless whether the country of origin be America, Australia, Germany, or Britain. The slogan, "Buy British" holds for him no appeal.

There is, however, another aspect of industry which ought not to be overlooked even as affecting this Colony by British manufacturers. When the Prince of Wales some time ago urged upon British industry the need of adopting its methods to the wants of customers, his advice was generally hailed as expressing sound sense. Yet there was another side to the case, and there were those who shook their heads over the possibility that British manufacturers might be tempted, in the struggle for cheapness, to lower dangerously the standard of quality which has made British goods a synonym all over the world for honest worth.

True, the Prince of Wales did not mean that British manufacturers should imitate the shoddy stuff which is sometimes produced by their competitors, and sold at prices that Britons could not imitate but which are still more than the stuff is worth. He meant, no doubt, that Britons should display a greater adaptability and not insist on making the very best when that is more than their customers can afford. The following of that advice is often a very complicated matter, which must be left to the good judgment and practical experience of manufacturers themselves.

Undoubtedly, however, there are dangers in the struggle for cheapness, not only for the individual manufacturer but for the whole nation. A British manufacturer the other week put on the market an article deliberately designed for export to countries where money is not plentiful. It was not a good article; he did not pretend it was. But he put on it in a prominent place the words, "English Make." The chances are that that article will be bought very largely on its combination of low price and the reputation of British goods. But when the buyers discover that it is not up to the standard they have expected, it will not be that manufacturer only who will suffer. The buyers' disappointment will result in injury to the reputation of all British goods.

It seems probable, indeed, that Britons have already suffered to some extent, in this way. Some of their foreign competitors, it has been freely stated, have not scrupled to imitate British marks on their own very inferior goods, and this, quite apart from British loss of trade, must have done more or less harm to Britain's reputation. If, however, Britons themselves take to making inferior goods and advertising the fact that they are British, it will not be long till the story spreads that British goods are no longer what they were, and Britain's best goods will be regarded with suspicion. That must be avoided at all hazards in Hong Kong and elsewhere overseas.

From Other Pens.

Where Britain Scores.

America is becoming weary of the spate of tedious advertising material which is shouted across the ether by the five hundred and more broadcasting stations of the United States.

"How pleasant it is, not to have the programmes interrupted by crude announcements of the virtues of So-and-so's toilet soap, or Somebody's golf ball." So I have heard Americans sigh enviously as they listened, to a B.B.C. broadcast.

I do not know to what extent the aesthetic appeal of a Mozart concerto is diminished by a raucous announcement acclaiming mineral waters or motorcars, but I am fairly certain that it is easy to over-estimate the value of a type of advertising which begins by irritating and ends by boring the public.—Evening Standard.

Sterling.

The word "sterling" seems to be in everybody's mouth at the moment, but not many, we imagine, could give an accurate explanation of its origin. We confess to having been in this position ourselves until we looked the matter up. We now know that the word is supposed to be derived from "Easterlings," the name given to the North German merchants who came to Britain in the reign of Edward I, and formed a "hansa" or sing, in London. In a statute of the period the silver penny is referred to as a "sterling." The word was borrowed by all European languages and applied to British coins of a standard quality.

Two other suggestions for its origin have been put forward; one that it represents the old English "sterling" — little star — from a device on an early coin, and the other that it emerges from "stearling," i.e., the birds—which, however, may be doves—on the coins of Edward the Confessor. The word has slipped into general usage to mean anything of intrinsic merit, and we now refer to a person's possession of "sterling qualities" without any implication about his monetary status.—Phang Gazette.

News in Brief.

The lowest open air temperature yesterday was 60 degrees. The humidity was 78 at 10 a.m. and 79 at 4 p.m.

A smoking concert will be held in the Police Recreation Club, Happy Valley, on Wednesday, commencing at 9 p.m.

Chung Chi-keung (24), a clerk at 100 High Street, was taken to hospital yesterday suffering from the effects of an overdose of alcohol.

Whilst engaged in demolition work at 35 Staunton Street yesterday, a woman, Chung Luk (55), was injured by a falling beam. She was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital at 11.5 a.m. suffering from injuries to her back and left leg, and died at 11.45 p.m. No. 35 Staunton Street will be remembered as the scene of the fire on June 9, which claimed fifteen lives.

Personal Pars.

General T. Matsui and Vice-Admiral Osami Nagano, (delegates for Japan to the disarmament conference at Geneva) lunched at Government House on Christmas Day.

The speaker at to-morrow's meeting of the Rotary Club will be the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, Commissioner, Boy Scouts' Association, who will take as his subject "Scouting in Hong Kong."

Amongst the passengers who arrived by the Empress of Japan were Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Roxburgh, Mr. L. E. N. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Draper, Mr. A. S. Gubbay, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Mossop, and Mrs. A. Stokkink.

"BULLET-PROOF" VEST RIDDLED BY SHOTS.

A gentleman who forgot to leave his address called at Police Headquarters proudly displaying a bulletproof vest he had invented. When the department's ballistic expert consented to test it, he peeled off his coat.

When they draped the vest over an oak panel instead of letting him wear it, he became very angry and protested loudly.

From a distance of 10 feet they each fired three .32 calibre bullets. Every bullet penetrated the oak panel. The inventor, quite angry, snatched up his invention and fled.

"THE MESSIAH."

Christmas Music in Union Church.

IMPRESSIVE RENDERING.

The Union Church, Kennedy Road, was filled last evening, on the occasion of the rendering of a portion of Handel's "Messiah" by the Church Choir, augmented by several local singers, and accompanied in addition to the organ by piano and a small string orchestra. The Choir master, Mr. G. E. Longyear, was particularly fortunate in his soloists.

Mr. H. Anniss has rarely, if ever, sung better, and his "Comfort Ye" and "Every Valley" were beautifully sung.

Mr. W. H. Bailey's singing, of the difficult Aria, "But Who May Abide," was given in the real spirit of the Scriptures—a solemn warning, after the sonorous and declamatory "Thus Saith the Lord," and he, too, has seldom sung better. He is to be congratulated on his singing of the Aria, "For Britain in the reign of Edward I, He is Like a Refiner's Fire," which, following the sustained measures of "For Who Shall Abide" was especially effective.

Mrs. H. L. Lockhart's "Oh, Thou that Tellest" was sung really well. This Aria is lengthy and rather tedious, but her singing compelled the admiration of all, especially those to whom the Aria is familiar. "He Shall Feed His Flock," too, was tenderly sung.

Pastoral Recitatives.

Mrs. Bowes-Smith, in the Pastoral Recitatives announcing the Nativity, and in "Rejoice Greatly," sang to perfection, every note in the latter Aria being clean as a bell, and her accomplishment of the difficult "runs" revealed a perfect command over production. It might be said, perhaps, that "Rejoice Greatly" lacked a little in nerve or rapture, but it was undoubtedly splendidly sung. So, also, was "Come Unto Him," the counterpart of, but contrast to, "He Shall Feed His Flock."

The singing of all three soloists was note perfect, and well above the ability of the average amateur, and Hong Kong is fortunate in possessing singers of their talent and ability.

Choir Well Balanced.

The Choir, although relatively small in numbers, was excellently balanced. The usual predominance of sopranos and bass was scarcely noticeable, and the "attack," a weakness of most choirs, most praiseworthy considering that they were not conducted with the baton. They sang as a body of music-lovers; their tone was perfect and their volume astonishing. "Hallelujah" was sung as it should be—a peon of triumph, and was the climax to a really inspiring, but all too short service.

The Orchestra. Much too little was heard of the orchestra, whose playing of the overture and the "Pastoral Symphony" was most enjoyable. One missed the familiar accompaniments to the solos, however well they were played on the organ.

Mrs. Phillips' part as pianist was obviously no small factor in the perfect union of choir and orchestra.

Mr. Longyear at the organ accompanied throughout, and as organist and choir master is to be congratulated on a most excellent performance of a work which every one loves. It is to be hoped that he will repeat and develop the effort and will soon give us more of the "Messiah." The splendid performance should encourage him to further efforts to feed "music-starved Hong Kong."

The singing of the Christmas hymns by the large congregation, with organ, choir and orchestra, was inspiring and devotional. The service was conducted by the Rev. E. G. Powell.

DRINK, BY A JUDGE.

Nothing Wrong in It—In Moderation.

A few words about drink by Mr. Justice Swift in the course of a case at Gloucester Assizes. Alcohol cheers people, loosens their tongues, makes conversation, and spreads geniality. There is nothing wrong in it if it is taken in moderation.

The taste is pleasant, so I am told, and it warms one, otherwise, who would pay for a cocktail if it were no more pleasant than water or milk?

People pay for drink because it influences them, and not necessarily in an improper way, either.

Taken in moderation, there is no reason why they should not have it.

SECOND CHILDHOOD

Sets Barn on Fire for Fun.

OLD LADY'S PASTIME.

An old woman aged 60 living alone in a shack has been discovered to be the author of no fewer than 16 fires which have terrified the neighbourhood.

A barn opposite the old woman's shack burned down and the woman informed local gendarmes that she "had not noticed it." As this was manifestly impossible, they made further enquiries, and found that she had lit this fire and many others too. She had lit them "for fun."

It appears that both her parents and grandparents also kindled a cheery blaze of barn or cottage occasionally as a pastime.

LESSON-SERMON.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Hong Kong.

NO PHYSICAL SCIENCE.

"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 27.

The Golden Text was: "The glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." (Isaiah 40: 5.)

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon in the following from the Bible: "If ye love me, keep my commandments, and I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." (John 14: 15-17.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the "Christian Science" textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science is an emanation of the divine Mind, and is able to interpret God aright. It has a spiritual, and not a material origin. It is a divine utterance,—the Comforter which leadeth into all truth." (p. 127.)

CLAWED BY LION.

Zoo Owner's Peril from Pet's Attack.

Mr. Roginald Goddard, the owner of a private "Zoo" in the grounds of an Elizabethan Manor at Chessington, Surrey, has recovered from an attack of blood poisoning after one of his hands had been clawed by a pet lion.

Quite unconsciously, said Mr. Goddard, he rested his left hand on the edge of the bars of the cage while chatting to his pet, "Billy," when the lion playfully shot out one of his great paws and pinned his master's hand down, then began to pull the hand and arm through. Blood flowed, and the lion became furious. Using all his strength, Mr. Goddard tore himself free, and escaped at the expense of a badly lacerated hand.

After he had been treated in hospital and the wound was almost healed, the poison in his blood fought the serum which had been injected, and for two or three days Mr. Goddard's life was in danger.

To-day's Thought.

Too often the fellow who is strong in his likes and dislikes is weak in his information.

Ten Years Ago.

[From the "China Mail" of December 28, 1921.]

To-day's dollar is worth 2/7 1/2.

Chinese merchants in Hong Kong, according to the North China Daily News, have invited Mei Lan-fang, the famous Chinese impersonator, to give several exhibitions at the port during the visit of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales next year. It is understood, states the Chinese Press, that Mei has been guaranteed $50,000 for his services.

BRITAIN DECLINING AS A WORLD POWER

DEAN INGE TALKS ON THE FATE OF EMPIRES.

In his second lecture on the "Fate of Empires," at the University College of North Wales, Bangor, Dean Inge said that Russia stood by itself, and he would be a rash man who predicted its future. The revolution of 1917 was led, not by Russians, but by Jews, Georgians, and Tartars, and on the one side it looked like a violent repudiation of the European viceroy.

With a Government which was not really communist but State Catholicism under terrorist Administration wielding absolute power over the whole population, it was unlike anything ever seen before in Europe or Asia. If the revolution passed into a militaristic phase, as some said it would, the world might see another series of Tartar invasions and possibly the destruction of Western civilisation. "This is a somewhat unhappy prediction," he said, "but none can guess what will follow the Terror."

Spanish Empire.

The decline of the Spanish Empire, which lasted longer than the British Empire had so far lasted, he proceeded, was due, among other things, to the dissemination of literature and ideas of revolt, mainly from French and British sources.

There was a modern parallel in the case of India. With almost incredible folly we had been educating the Indians with the literature of revolt for nearly 100 years, and now we were surprised because they were learning the lesson. The French as colonists had proved clever at making themselves decently popular, but like Rome the French were playing a dangerous game in relying more and more upon barbarian troops to maintain their rule.

Since the fall of Rome there had been only two political experiments on a very grand scale, both the work of Anglo-Saxons: these were the American Federal Republic and the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Europe's Ascendancy.

The United States at present was already the greatest Power and with a population of 130,000,000 and vast wealth and resources was invulnerable. Some three years before the war, said Dean Inge, when he was a member of a mission of peace to Germany, he stated to a great German publicist that Europe appeared to have about fifty years more of ascendancy before the centre of wealth and power definitely crossed to America, but that if we had a European war possibly we should throw away those fifty years. The British Commonwealth of Nations was an experiment with a dubious future, he went on, but we must wish it well. It was the one real

League of Nations that was in working order. No part of the British Commonwealth paid either tribute or tax to Britain. There was not a written constitution and extraordinarily little military force.

The question to-day, he said, was no longer whether we would retain our coloured subjects, but whether we could keep them out of the countries we had staked out for our own kin. North America would probably succeed in keeping them out, but the future of Australia and South Africa was much more doubtful.

Definitely Over.

The period of the expansion of the white race, he declared, was definitely over. Some nations were dying for want of heart, although he was glad to say that was not quite the case with this country. But our birth-rate has declined (it was below the real actuarial death-rate), and even on the basis of a stationary population the country was going down in numbers. We had lost our natural advantages, and our geographical position was no longer quite the best.

"Although I do not wish to take an altogether pessimistic view, I am afraid our part of world power is approaching its end," he added, after predicting that the British element in the Dominions and the United States would steadily diminish.

The parallel with Rome was rather close. There was room for expansion in Canada and Australia, but only for the right type, not the parasitic type whose idea was to put in fourpence and take out ninepence.

Not Good Enough.

He was afraid we were not good enough to keep our position, and he expected that a hundred years hence we would have gone back to the pre-industrial Britain of before 1760 except for the enormous development of labour-saving machinery and the smaller population.

How the population was to be reduced he did not know, but it would have to be done. There was still much that was fine in the British character. We might even have a new renaissance, with another Shakespeare, Milton, Reynolds, or a Newton.

London might become the spiritual capital of the world after ceasing to be its financial centre. Our future was in our hands and history would do us the honour of saying that although this was the last of the world empires it was the greatest and most beneficent.

Loss of empire, however, did not necessarily mean the failure of the race, but he emphasised that only eugenics would save the race.

A FISH-FEEDING BIRD.

Habits of the Pelican.

A wonderful bird is the Pelican, whose beak holds more than his belly can.

They say he drinks Bass From a bottle or glass, But I don't know how the h... he can.

What he thinks is "a rare bird" fell to the gun of Mr. John William Coonerath of Hangawatte, Mirigama, Ceylon. The bird measures about 8½ feet from the tip of one wing to that of the other, and is about five feet in length from beak to tip of tail.

Mr. A. R. Hughes, an authority on birds, contributes the following note on the specimen:—

"The bird in question is Pelicanus Philippinus, the spot-bill Pelican. This bird is found wherever there are suitable sheets of water throughout the North and East of the island and even as far down as Hambantota. It is found often in large flocks on brackish lagoons. It is much more common in the sea than inland, but I have observed it in numbers at Horowuputana, Kantalai and the Minneriya tanks."

"Its nesting habits are as follows: It builds usually in large trees at a good height. The nest is a huge affair of haphazardly arranged sticks and the eggs, usually three in number, are white with a chalky appearance, and rather rough to the touch."

How Pelicans Fish.

"Pelicans are naturally fish-feeders and the large pouch-like attachment to the lower bill will on occasion hold several pounds of fish. I have observed Pelicans on several occasions systematically fishing a given area. Quivering in the water like well trained gun-dogs, the Pelicans drive the fish into shoals, the bill and the portion of the head and neck are submerged, and with a scooping motion the fish are caught."

"The young of the Pelican are nestlings are quite helpless and remain in the downy duckling stage for a considerable time. Here again the pouch comes in handy in conveying food from the water to the nest. I am not sure though that the fish before being fed to the young Pelicans are not partially swallowed by the bird, breaking the bones and coating the food with pepsin, as there appears to be a considerable amount of this fluid in the gullet of adult birds. If the bird was eaten, I could rather like to know what it tasted like."

STORY LIBELS A COMPANY.

Paper To Pay £200 Damages.

Damages of £200 with costs, were awarded to the Rock Investment Company, Ltd., in the King's Bench Division, against the Illustrated London News and Sketch, Ltd. The jury found that the company had been libelled in a story called "In the Long Run."

Complaint was made that the Rock Investment Company was mentioned in the story, which referred to "that huge financial swindle, involving the arrest of three directors."

The defence was that the story was entirely fiction and was not intended to refer to any of the plaintiffs.

In cases brought by three directors of the investment company individually, judgment was given for defendants without costs.

A HOME RUN FOR FROGS.

Two That Wrestle Like Humans.

FROGS COMMIT SUICIDE.

If a frog should suddenly come hopping into your dining-room while you are having a meal and request a "hand-out" by sitting up and begging like a trained dog, don't rush for the smelling salts or to the wine-cupboard to see if the methylated spirits accidentally got in among your stock of drinks.

That is, don't rush to the wine cupboard unless there is just a chance that it might be the wine, and not something else.

Simply treat the visiting frog with courtesy. He may be a round-the-world traveller, or he may be one of your own garden products whose great-grandfather went to college.

Mr. W. Boggis (sounds suggestive, that name) of Dunvegan, Midlothian, is probably the first man in the world to have conducted a school for frogs. He told a Daily Express representative that he did so "because all the world despises the frog." Therefore, he decided to give them some "uplift."

Mr. Boggis assembled about 120 frogs and 90 toads in his suburban garden and commenced to educate them.

"No one seems to know much about the creatures," he said. "So I built an estate for them in my garden and arranged suburban villas and bungalows near the tank side. In time the frogs and toads became quite tame, and whenever they heard my footsteps coming down the garden, they began to croak in welcome."

Two of them, named Mrs. Broxbourne and Lady Nazing, according to Mr. Boggis, would stand up on their hind legs and wrestle like human beings.

Mr. Boggis told the Press representative that frogs and toads often commit suicide by drowning. "I have seen them deliberately throw themselves from bridges and I have rescued them and revived them by means of artificial respiration."

"And now," added Mr. Boggis, "I have set them all free to impart their knowledge to their brothers and sisters throughout the world."

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY WIZARD.

Strange powers said to be possessed by a schoolmaster of Czernowitz, in Bukovina, who is becoming famous in Austria as a medium, are now being investigated by local doctors.

When in a trance, it is said, the schoolmaster, whose name is Joseph Schmidt, can read and predict thoughts: fluently speak ancient Hebrew and Greek and Babylonian tongue, sing songs in Arabic, tell the date on which any person died, and the cause of their death. It is added that a mere touch of the hand will cause him to fall into a trance.

NO WINS, NO GIRLS!

The "co-eds" at Boston University informed the members of the varsity football team by letter that they would not speak to, or make dates with, any member of the team until it wins a football game. The Boston eleven now has gone through 10 consecutive defeats and the girls are tired of the continued losses. The letter also informed the players that the ultimatum would not be altered in any circumstances save a football victory.

Montreal's Newest Station

A comprehensive view of the Canadian Pacific's new Park Avenue Station, located at the head of the thoroughfare of the same name, to serve the northern residential districts. This splendid building, completed at a cost of $750,000, is constructed of limestone and is in combined modern and classical style. Park Avenue was opened for service November first.

COMPLAINED WHEN SIGHT WAS RESTORED.

Hypnotic Cure Stops Man's Income.

Somewhere in London there is a man in tinted glasses who carries a "discharged, incurable" certificate from a blind institution.

Without the glasses he can read what is written on the certificate. Nevertheless, he displays a placard bearing the plea, "Pity the poor blind."

His remarkable story was told to a West End audience by Professor Alexander Erskine, the authority on neurology and therapeutics, who was repelling, in debate, the charge that the science of hypnosis is a public menace.

Blind for Years.

"I stumbled over the man, and picked him up with apologies, said the professor. 'The man replied: 'It's all right gov'nor, I'm blind.'"

"I took the man upstairs and examined him," the speaker went on. "He was certainly blind, and had been for many years."

"But he reacted to hypnotic treatment, regained his sight there and then and flung his arms around me and kissed me...."

"A week later, however, he came back, complaining I had taken away his livelihood...."

"His pension had been stopped," he said. He could no longer collect alms in the streets. It had even been suggested that he had been malingering in the past."

Professor's Offer.

"I offered to hypnotise him back to blindness—as no doubt I could have done—but his reply to that was: 'For God's sake, don't!'"

"He decided then to wear coloured glasses and to go back to his old mode of livelihood...."

ORPHAN BOY FINDS NEW HOME.

Given Equal Chance As Own Sons.

William Brady, 16, motherless waif befriended recently by a Tacoma police officer, has found a home.

Alex L. Babbit, assistant manager of the Bank of California, has taken the lad into his own home and is giving him the same treatment he gives his own two boys.

Bill has already been entered in the ninth grade at the Mason intermediate school. For once in his life Bill can do something else besides work, according to Mr. Babbit. Bill will be able to play games other boys his age are playing. At last he is to know what the word home really means.

Mr. Babbit is confident that Bill will make good. The boy has worked hard all of his life, but a medical examination showed him to be in good physical condition with the exception of his tonsils.

In the few days he has attended school Bill has made a great many new friends and is daily discovering with great delight pleasures he never knew existed.

Bill was found by Patrolman J. A. Kelly sleeping in a sawdust pile on the waterfront near Old Tacoma. When he learned that Bill had peddled his way from Aberdeen on his bicycle; that his mother had died three years ago, and his father had deserted his family six years ago,

Officer Kelly took the boy to his own home instead of to the detention home.

It was through Kelly's efforts and a story printed in The Ledger that Mr. Babbit took Bill to live with him as one of his own sons.

MARRIED NOW, SPINSTER LATER.

A woman in Uruguay may get a divorce without giving any reason. She need not notify her husband; she only needs to appear and ask for a divorce. A year later she comes back and is given the final decree.

Complaint was made that the Rock Investment Company was mentioned in the story, which referred to "that huge financial swindle, involving the arrest of three directors."

The defence was that the story was entirely fiction and was not intended to refer to any of the plaintiffs.

In cases brought by three directors of the investment company individually, judgment was given for defendants without costs.

The Steamship, "BENLEDI"

Consignees of Cargo are hereby informed that all Goods are being landed at their risk into the hazardous and/or extra hazardous Godowns of The Hong Kong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Co., Ltd., whence and/or from the wharves delivery may be obtained.

No claims will be admitted after the Goods have left the Godowns, and all Goods remaining undelivered after the 28th instant, will be subject to rent.

All claims against the steamer must be presented to the Underwriter on or before the 11th January, 1932, or they will not be recognised.

All broken, chafed, and damaged Goods are to be left in the Godowns, where they will be examined on the 24th instant at 10 a.m. by Messrs. Goddard & Douglas.

To comply with the General Bonded Warehouse Regulations consignees must have a Revenue Officer in attendance when damaged dutiable goods are examined.

No Fire Insurance has been effected.

Bills of Lading will be countersigned by GIBB, LIVINGSTON & CO., LTD. Agents.

Hong Kong, 21st December, 1931.

RUINED BY POLITICS.

When Mrs. Soderberg sought a divorce (says Reuter) she stated that before he was elected Mayor of Hazelcrest (Illinois), her husband came home of nights, put out the cat, never swore, drank, or smoked cigars. Now he smoked big black cigars and drank and swore. He refused to put the cat out, and the dinner got cold waiting for him to come home.

The judge gave her a divorce.

Fresh Progress in the Philippines.

NEW LANDING FIELD.

Manila.
A report from Baguio states that this morning Acting Governor-General George C. Butte shovelled the first dirt starting the improvement of the Loakan landing field. This is the first important step toward giving Baguio air transportation to Manila.

Major-General John L. Hines, Commanding-General of the Philippine Department, took part in the ceremony.
General Hines is an enthusiastic believer in the future of commercial aviation in the Islands and it was he who ordered the aerial survey of the southern airplane route to Mindanao several months ago.

Army Air Corps officers attended the ceremony, and all residents of Baguio interested in flying were present. Army officers at Camp
John Hay, together with the 45th
Infantry Band, joined in the ceremony.

ANIMALS IN AIR

Lions, Bears, Dogs, and Poultry.

London, November 24.
The carriage of dogs, poultry, and other livestock by air is so much on the increase that a department has just been established by Imperial Airways to deal with this growing form of aerial traffic.

The existence of a special department ensures not only that animals make their journeys in a minimum of time, but also that they receive individual care, being fed and attended to, as required, while in transit between London and any destination on the continent.

When valuable animals are sent from this country to appear in Shows on the continent, it is essential not only that transit time should be cut down to a minimum, but also that vibration and jarring should, so far as possible, be avoided. In this respect the airway is unrivalled.
Not only is an air journey smooth and free from those transients from train to boat, and back again to train, which are otherwise unavoidable, but the animals travel in a lined compartment, well protected from draughts or damp.

Among recent consignments of livestock by Imperial Airways have been:
Dogs
Cats
Mice
Day-old Chicks
Pigeons
Gage birds
Fish in tanks
Bees
Turkeys
Insects
Small Bears.
Lion cubs
Rare Zoo specimens
Monkeys
Consignment of day-old chicks are often placed in an early morning plane at Croydon, reaching in not more than a day's flying destinations far-distant across the continent. Recently, as many as 2,000 chicks, in a single consignment, were flown from this country to Romania.

When a big good-carrying machine alighted at the London airport, not long ago, it was discovered that its freight compartment had been transformed, temporarily, into a flying menagerie, containing parrots, monkeys, and a bear, together with a number of tropical fish in tanks. On another occasion the occupants of a cargo-plane were a number of live alligators, travelling in special crates, while not long ago the officials were called upon to install in a freight machine a den in which a fully-grown lion, accompanied by its trainer, was air-borne from the continent to London to take part in a circus. On yet another occasion a big cargo-carrying craft had its hull fitted up so that a valuable horse might be air-borne from abroad.

MUSSOLINI'S BROTHER DIES.

Milan, Dec. 21.
Arnaldo Mussolini, younger brother of the Italian Premier, died suddenly to-day of a heart attack while in his automobile.
The Dictator's brother was Editor
of Popolo d'Italia, the newspaper which the former founded at the outbreak of the War when Benito Mussolini broke the Socialist party over the question of Italian intervention. Associated

ALEKO LILIUS.

Action Against Railway Company.

UNFULFILLED CONTRACTS.

Manila.
Aleko Lilius, local correspondent of American and European magazines and newspapers (who is well known in Hong Kong) failed to fulfil about 40 contracts he had with those publishers to write articles and stories for them because of the injuries he sustained and the effects of the railroad accident near Dayap, Laguna, on May 10, last, according to testimony he gave in Court here.

The hearing of the P50,000
damage suit instituted by Lilius, in his own behalf and in behalf of his wife and daughter, against the Manila Railroad Company, was resumed in the court of Judge
Mariano Albert.

A Moving Picture?
Lilius testified that on account of the accident, he was not able to accept an offer made to him by an American moving picture producer to write scenario stories with compensation at $250 a week.
To confirm this testimony, he presented in Court a radiogram he received from a director of a picture firm.

The witness likewise brought out in Court that he had to pay P12,000 in hospital, doctor and nurse bills during the time that he and his family were nursing injuries sustained in the railroad accident near Dayap, Laguna.

At the close of the hearing,
S. W. O'Brien, counsel for Lilius, completed his direct examination.
The hearing of the case will be continued on January 4, 6 and 8,
according to an order of Judge Albert.

On January 4, Lilius will be cross-examined by Judge Jose
Abreu, counsel for the Manila Railroad Company.

WILD RUMOURS.

Confuse Tokyo Stock Exchange.

Tokyo, December 22.
The Tokyo Stock Exchange was wildly confused to-day by inexplicable rumours that the United States was abandoning the gold standard.
Leading shares swung back and forth over a wide margin.
The Stock Exchange, which normally closes at 4 p.m., remained open until after 6 p.m. Police were investigating the source of the strange rumours. As an example of the trend, Kanegafuchi Spinnings opened at 100, swung to a low figure of 140 and closed at 150.
The rumours caused almost as much excitement as the abandonment of the gold standard for the
yen. United Press.

TERRITORIAL ARMY.

No Increase in Strength in 1932.

An official of the War Office has stated that the War Office intends to limit the strength of the Territorial Army in 1932 to what it was in 1931.

The establishment figure is 169,407 officers and other ranks, but in the 1931 Estimates the maximum strength provided for was 6,800 and 128,500 respectively.
This maximum number is not to be exceeded in 1932.

In some individual units, particularly in the North of England, the strength and establishment figures are practically the same, but other units—some of the London regiments, for instance—are considerably short of establishment. These units will not be allowed, however, to recruit beyond approximately their strength of last year.

A letter is to be issued shortly by the War Office to the Territorial Army Associations, which it is hoped will clear away any doubts about the position.

A THOROUGH SUICIDE.

A workman of Marlborough has committed suicide in a terribly thorough fashion.
He climbed a tree, placed a rope
tack while in his automobile.
The Dictator's brother was Editor
of Popolo d'Italia, the newspaper which the former founded at
the outbreak of the War when Benito Mussolini broke the Socialist party over the question of Italian intervention. Associated

JUDGE AND CONVICT THE BEST OF FRIENDS.

But Death Parts
Them.

"I WANT TO THANK HIM."

An Old Bailey judge's wreath was on the coffin of an old convict, a man who spent 34 years of his life in gaol for thefts which totalled £14—when he was laid to rest in Kensal Green Cemetery.

Judge and convict met for the first time in the Recorder's Court of the Old Bailey, where Sir Ernest Wild, after listening to the heart-rending drama of a man who never had a chance to go straight held out a helping hand to the grey-haired old man of 70 in the dock.

The old convict walked out of the dock to freedom, and a job—a humble job of selling newspapers on a pitch outside a London tube station. He pledged his word to go straight... and he did. He never turned the corner after that day, and he might have been on his pitch still, earning an honest though meagre living but he developed cancer and died in a London hospital.

Sir Ernest Wild used to sit by the bedside of the man he had saved. It was wonderful to see them together, judge and convict talking about the cathedral city which both knew in their school days. And every time the Old Bailey judge went to see the old convict he brought a bunch of flowers to perfume his sick-room.

Every nosegay which the City Fathers placed on Sir Ernest Wild's table in court went to the old convict with a kindly message from the judge who was his friend.

The old convict's last thoughts were of the judge, and he breathed his name in his death agony, "a message to Sir Ernest Wild," he whispered "I want to thank him before I go." But it was too late, and he passed away without uttering his thanks.

FREE PRESENTS FOR FRIENDS.

Judge Zung in First District Court, Shanghai, on December 14 sent Zee Pau-ning to jail for a term of four months when the latter was convicted on a charge of attempting to steal $1,729 worth of books from the Chinese American Publishing Company, 115 the China Press.

Detective Sergeant Bolshenko said that from investigations made he found that accused who was employed by complainants, was first suspected when he was found sleeping inside the store by a boy who was cleaning up the rooms.

The boy reported this to Mr. Montine who searched the desk of accused and found a number of books. He also found that the accused had transferred a great number of books upstairs where he could remove them from the premises at his leisure.

Zee admitted the allegations, pleading that he wanted to give the books away to his friends at Christmas.

FISH WITH A HEAD- LIGHT.

Liner's "Catch" for London Zoo.

GREEN EYED PRAWNS.

Ocellated fish with eyes that shine in the darkness like motor headlights were among a consignment for the Zoo Aquarium which arrived at Southampton in the Union Castle liner Winchester Castle.

They were in a big sea water tank, which also contained:

Prawns that emit a fascinating green light from their eyes in the dark;

Sea urchins with poison-tipped spikes on their spines;

Representatives of the octopus family, and Many varieties of brightly-hued fish.

The Zoo official spent an hour fishing them out with a net before they were transported to London.

The ocellated fish was perhaps the most spectacular inhabitant of the tank. It is brownish red, with rings of a farthing all over it. As its life is spent in almost perpetual darkness, nature has provided it with a means of emitting its own light.

"This specimen," added the Zoo official, "will be a welcome arrival at the aquarium, as we have none there at present."

TEARS FAIL TO IMPRESS A JUDGE.

Protestations of deep religious convictions and regrets failed to save weeping George H. Warner, 36, from paying the penalty for worthless cheques.

City Detective H. E. Warren of the police had cheque detail said Warner was arrested after trying to pass a worthless $5 cheque on a downtown store and had issued several other worthless cheques. Warner was charged with petty larceny.

Warner took the stand and wept as he told his story. He said he was helping take care of the widow of a former assistant pastor to a prominent Seattle minister and had brought her north from Los Angeles when they were unable to get work there. They ran out of money in Seattle and Warner said he finally resorted to worthless cheques, "but the widow did not know of it."

"She has faith," Warner sobbed. "She thought we could live on prayer but I didn't see it that way. If you haven't got the groceries you can't live, that's my idea."

"I've never been in any real trouble before. I was arrested once in Los Angeles, yes, and fined $7 for walking across a street against a traffic light, but that's the only time I ever broke a law."

"But as God is my judge, I didn't realize what I was doing when I used those cheques. I knew something was wrong while I was doing it, but it was too late then," Warner faltered on. "I guess a man can't be religious and be a hypocrite, and I've been a hypocrite—no honour to me, you might say."

Judge Magill agreed and gave him 90 days in the county jail, subject to suspension.
